DUBLIN CASTLE,

29th March, 1902.

GENTLEMEN,

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your Letter of the 20th instant, forwarding, for submission to His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant, the Twentieth Annual Report on the condition and progress of the Royal University of Ireland.

I am Gentlemen,

Your obedient Servant,

D. HARREL

TWENTIETH REPORT

OF

THE ROYAL UNIVERSITY OF IRELAND.

---

TO HIS EXCELLENCY GEORGE HENRY, EARL CADOGAN, K.G.,

&c., &c.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

THE ROYAL UNIVERSITY OF IRELAND,

January, 1902.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Owing to the death of the late Lord Dufferin, Chancellor of the University, and to the fact that no person has yet been appointed by the Senate to succeed the late Lord Morris and Killanin as Vice-Chancellor, it devolves upon me as Senior Member of Senate to submit the Annual Report on the condition and progress of the University, the final proof of which was approved by the late Chancellor.

The total number of persons who entered for the various Academical Examinations of the University during the year 1901, was 2,781; while in the previous year it was 2,658.

The Appendixes to this Report contain Tables giving all important details connected with the Examinations held in 1901, for both male and female candidates. A Table is also given showing the Academic progress, in the various Faculties, made by Students matriculated in 1881 to 1900, inclusive.

There were two public meetings of the University in 1901. The first was of a formal character, and was held on the 3rd day of May, for the purpose mainly of admitting to their degrees the candidates who had passed at the Medical Examinations held a short time previously.

The usual annual meeting of the University to confer degrees in the several Faculties, and to declare the distinctions obtained by candidates at the Honour Examinations, was held on the 25th day of October. Details of proceedings at this meeting are given in Appendix II.

In conformity with the provisions of the Act of Parliament, 44 and 45 Vic., chap. 52, the accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the University, with the corresponding vouchers and other documents, are rendered quarterly to the Comptroller and Auditor-General, who submits an annual report and abstract to Parliament.

I cannot conclude without expressing for the Senate and myself our sense of the great loss the University has sustained by the deaths of the two distinguished noblemen to whom I have referred.

I have the honour to be

Your Excellency's faithful and obedient servant,

(Signed),     KENMARE.

Pro Vice-Chancellor.

APPENDIX II.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE ROYAL UNIVERSITY OF IRELAND.

OCTOBER 25, 1901.

The Twentieth Annual Meeting of the University was held on October 25, 1901.

The Chancellor, The Most Hon. The MARQUIS OF DUFFERIN AND AVA, opened the proceedings with the following address:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—

In opening the proceedings at this, our annual celebration, it is rarely that the occupant of the Chancellor's chair is privileged to commence the business of the day without being compelled to strike a mournful note at the outset of his address. Two years ago it was my painful duty to express on behalf of the members of the Senate and myself, and of all those connected with this University, our deep sense of the loss we had sustained by the death of our then Vice-Chancellor, the Right Hon. Christopher Redington, and now, in equally sad tones, I am compelled to lament the disappearance from amongst us of one of the most distinguished figures that has ever adorned the political, the judicial, the Parliamentary, or the social life of Ireland. Gentlemen, by the death of Lord Morris and Killanin our country and this University has sustained an irreparable loss, a very Irishman of Irishmen, a representative in his handsome person, in his wit, in the grace of his manners, and in his indomitable gaiety, of all those engaging characteristics which generally distinguish an ancient Celtic line. The commencement of his career was graced by the highest academical honours, as its conclusion has been crowned by the most decisive mark of approval it is possible for the Sovereign of these realms to confer upon an able, laborious, and faithful public servant. To you who are now listening to me I need not recall the various phases of his honourable career, and it would be equally superfluous to remind you of those qualities which endeared him to all who knew him, or of the innate kindness of his heart. We all loved him and admired him, and it is something of a consolation to me to think that by asking him last year to undertake the discharge of the functions belonging to my office an opportunity was afforded to you of listening to his persuasive eloquence. Of one thing I am sure, no human being could have felt a keener sympathy with the students who frequent these halls, or have said God-speed to them as they passed through the golden gates of this University on their several careers with more fervent or sympathetic wishes for their future success. But, alas! Lord Morris is not the only distinguished friend and colleague whose place will know him no more. We have to regret the death of that eminent physician, Dr. F. J. B. Quinlan, our Examiner in materia medica, of whom I am sure all our medical students will ever retain a friendly recollection. We have also lost Professor J. Huston Stewart, whose sound judgment, energy, and zeal for the successful working of his department of Natural Philosophy in the University has been so widely recognised. And, lastly, we have been deprived of the services of Professor Thomas Arnold, the son of Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, one of the noblest characters and one of the most powerful influences that dominated public opinion during the last half century, and the father of a lady, Mrs. Humphrey Ward, who has graced the literature of her day with such powerful works of imagination, and whose writings are characterised by a loftiness of aim, a purity of conception, and a sweet lucidity of expression which can never be surpassed. Mr. Arnold's own contributions to the more learned literature of the time have been remarkable, as exemplified by his "Manual of English Literature," now in its sixth edition, by his publication of the English works of Wycliff, his "Selections from the Spectator," his Clarendon, and the text translation of the "Beowulf." Indeed, he worked on to the last, for, alas! death has overtaken him while busily engaged in examining and calendaring the Chronicles of the Abbey of Bury St. Edmunds. And now, gentlemen, having closed the sad catalogue of our losses, I will proceed to bring to your notice a few of the candidates at the recent examinations to whom special marks of distinction have been awarded by the Senate. The first upon my list is Mr. Thomas Rea, M.A., of Queen's College, Galway, who has gained a Junior Fellowship in Modern Literature, to which is attached a sum of £200 a year for four years. Then Mr. Alphonsus J. P. O'Farrelly, M.A., of University College, Dublin, and the University of Berlin, has acquired a similar honour in Chemistry with Experimental Physics, so that we have the satisfaction of knowing that this last gentleman has not been altogether made in Germany.

I now come to the studentships, to which £100 a year for three years is attached. Of these the first is Mr. John H. Edgar, B.A., of Queen's College, Belfast, who has won this gratifying distinction in History and Political Science. In Mathematical Science we have Mr. Thomas B. Vinycomb, B.A., also of Queen's College, Belfast, a name universally honoured in the North of Ireland, as borne by an artist of great talent and extraordinary skill in executing illuminations after the best Celtic pattern, as displayed in our most famous Irish manuscripts. The next awards are represented by gold medals, one of which has been bestowed at the M.D. Degree examination on Mr. William J. Dargan, M.B., B.Ch., B.A.O., of the Catholic University School of Medicine, Dublin, for highly distinguished answering. Another gold medal has been won by Mr. Benjamin Moore, M.A., at the Doctor of Science examination for highly distinguished attainments. Lastly, I have the pleasure of announcing that Honorary Degrees will be conferred first upon Professor Walter N. Hartley, F.R.S., Professor of Chemistry in the Royal College of Science, Dublin, on account of the distinction he has gained in original chemical research, especially in the spectroscopic branch of the science. Professor Hartley, in 1874, from a consideration that all physical properties of organic substances are dependent on their molecular constitution, commenced and organised a line of research into this subject, which has occupied him continuously for the last twenty-four years. His method of investigation was to examine by a special instrument, which he designed for the purpose, the spectra of a large variety of organic substances, and also the spectra of the various metals. As these spectra were situated almost entirely in the region beyond the limits of the sun's rays, and therefore beyond the reach of the human eye, he had recourse to photography. He was the first to apply the modern photographic processes to scientific investigations. He discovered the spectra which a large number of metals yield when vapourised by the electric spark, and he found it necessary for further progress to measure with greater accuracy than up to that time had been accomplished, the wave-lengths of the invisible rays of which the spectra were constituted. He discovered a relationship between the lines of certain metallic spectra and what is known to chemists as the Periodic Law of the Elements. He was the first to show that organic substances may be classified according to their spectroscopic properties, and that substances of an unknown constitution may have their constitution ascertained by the examination of their spectra. He was the first, too, to explain, in the year 1881, the cause of the absorption bands in the spectra of inorganic and organic substances. By his methods of investigation he has solved a variety of problems incapable of solution by purely chemical processes. Some of these are of an abstruse and purely scientific character, but others have been recognised as being of great practical and technical importance, relating to the fermentation industries, the detection and absolute identification of poisonous alkaloids in medico-legal inquiries, the thermo-chemistry of metallurgical processes, particularly of the Bessemer process of steel manufacture. He has shown also that many of the very rare metals are found widely distributed in small proportions in common materials. And here I may mention that it was by means of the Rowland spectrometer in the laboratory of the Royal University that Professor Hartley showed that certain lines in the solar spectrum, the cause of whose presence had as yet been undiscovered, were due to the rare element Gallium, a result which was of the highest interest to the scientific world, inasmuch as there can be no discovery of the kind but what it is sure to lead sooner or later to some other discovery of even greater importance—a rung in that ladder by which we rise from night to height in our appreciation of the marvels of creation. The second gentleman upon whom I shall have the pleasure of conferring a degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, is Robert E. Matheson, Esq., Registrar-General for Ireland, in recognition of his valuable research work in connection with Irish names, and of his other eminent public services as a statistician. Mr. Matheson's book upon Irish names is one of the most interesting volumes I have ever read, full of quaint information, which from time to time illuminates many obscure points in the history of the country, and enables us to stretch our conjectures far beyond even those historical records that have been rescued from the destructive hand of time. Amongst other interesting consequences to be derived from Mr. Matheson's investigations, there is none more worthy of note than the number of various ethnological affluents which have combined in ancient days to constitute the Irish people of to-day. Of Mr. Matheson's contributions to our statistical and legal knowledge, it is scarcely necessary for me to speak. The Registrar-General's annual reports have always been regarded as models of minute accuracy, while his paper on "The Mechanism of Statistics" lets us into the secret methods by which this accuracy is obtained. He has also produced another most useful work, namely, his "Report on the Insects, Fungi and Weeds Injurious to Farm Crops," accompanied by original drawings. Considering how hard is the battle our agricultural population is fighting with those adverse circumstances which have recently been depressing agriculture, such a work as this cannot fail to be of great utility. Another interesting production of Mr. Matheson's has been a volume of diagrams and maps illustrating the state of crime in Ireland between the years 1881 and 1900. Such a work naturally evokes in the reader somewhat mingled sentiments, but however melancholy the topic, there are generally gleams of light to console us. At all events, I am pleased to think that my own county is in the list of those that are freest from crime, though beaten, I am bound in justice to admit, by Wexford and Mayo, but only by those communities in the matter of temperance. Lastly, I shall have the extreme satisfaction of conferring the degree of LL.D., honoris causa, upon my friend and colleague, Sir Rowland Blennerhassett, President of the Queen's College, Cork, and a member of our Senate. As you know, Sir Rowland Blennerhassett occupies a foremost position in educational work in Ireland. He has been for many years a Commissioner of National Education, and prior to his appointment as President of Queen's College, Cork, he was inspector of Industrial Schools and Reformatories in Ireland. His writings on University matters, especially in reference to the German University system, of which Sir Rowland has wide and intimate knowledge, have attracted considerable attention both here and on the Continent. It will give me personally peculiar pleasure to be the instrument of conferring this well-deserved honour upon our distinguished senator. And now, gentlemen, I do not propose to detain you further on the present occasion. As you are well aware, a Royal Commission on University Education in Ireland, composed of very distinguished gentlemen, has already been taking evidence in this University. As was sure to be the case, they have been received by our authorities with the utmost cordiality, and everything has been done to make them acquainted with the system on which this institution is conducted, with the results which we have obtained, as well with all the other points on which they were desirous of obtaining information.

That we shall come off with flying colours I have little doubt, so far as a University which is only an examining body can be regarded with perfect satisfaction. In any event I am sure that our Senate will be anxious to consider in the most receptive spirit whatever recommendation may emanate from them for our improvement. And now, gentlemen, it only remains for me to congratulate all those who have passed triumphantly through their examinations, and have acquired those well-deserved honours or that creditable status which their abilities and industry have won for them. For myself I can only say that I never come amongst the students without feelings of ardent sympathy with them in their endeavours to fit themselves for the battle of life. Having passed, though more than fifty years ago, through the same experiences which they have so triumphantly encountered I can well understand their feelings, their wishes, and their hopes. Of this I am sure, that however closely their energies may be restricted to the narrow limits of their respective professions, their affections will still cling to their native country, and that in labouring for their own advancement they will neglect no opportunity both of being and of doing that which may contribute to its prosperity.

And if I might venture to impress upon them one further piece of advice it would be to cultivate the spirit of justice. Justice is the only sound foundation of all human society, and unless we allow it to be the guide of our acts, nothing but wrong and misery will be the result. Unfortunately, in Ireland we are sometimes inclined to listen rather to the dictates of our heart than to those of our head, and in an emotional desire to abate a certain amount of suffering, which may happen accidentally to appeal with undue prominence to our imagination we fail adequately to calculate the far more extensive evils which accrue from our giving way to a misguided impulse. Let commonsense, sound judgment, and above all, the dictates of justice, direct, reinforce, and embellish the promptings of your warm and generous Irish hearts. I cannot conclude without directing the attention of the University to an act of generosity on the part of a graduate of the University which was brought before the Senate at yesterday's meeting. Dr. W. A. Browne, of London, a past student of Queen's College, Galway, has intimated his intention of providing, in perpetuity, a valuable gold medal and a money prize, to be awarded annually at the B.A. Degree Examination for a colloquial knowledge of French and German. Dr. Browne has already given practical proof of his interest in the education of his native land by endowing in Queen's College, Galway, a scholarship for proficiency in these languages. I have no doubt that you will allow me on your behalf to express to Dr. Browne your appreciation of his generous act, and to return him your warmest thanks, and you will. I am sure, join me in the hope that his example may influence others to go and do likewise. I have had the pleasure and satisfaction to discharge the duty of Chancellor on several previous occasions, and I can most sincerely congratulate the students upon the courtesy they have shown me on the present occasion. They have listened patiently to a long discourse which has interposed between them and seeing their friends receiving the honours which they have gained. All I can say is that I thank them from the bottom of my heart, and I trust that from year to year every successive Chancellor may be in a position to make them the same compliment.

Sir James Creed Meredith, one of the Secretaries of the University, then read the list of successful candidates for Degrees, and the persons named were presented by Dr. Joseph McGrath, the other Secretary, to the Chancellor, who admitted them to their respective Degrees.
